ABOUT CURACAO

Introduction

Colorful Curaçao is a vibrant mix of cultures - from the colonial architecture of the Dutch to the mouth-watering cuisine of the Creole. The island's handsome UNESCO heritage capital of Willemstad offers visitors a window into the past with its pastel-colored houses and cobblestone plazas.

While elsewhere, the island's rolling desert plains hide a myriad of scenic gems, from hidden rocky coves trimmed by massive cliffs, to long sandy beaches flanked by clear blue-green water. Leafy nature trails offer quiet seclusion while music-filled malls bustle with bag-laden shoppers and cut-price deals.

WELCOME TO OUR BEAUTIFUL ISLAND

We have gathered some useful and interesting information about Curacao which we thought might be useful for planning your trip or getting to know our small but beautiful island.

Besides general information, you can go to the website www.curacao.com

History of Curaçao

Curaçao, the largest of the now disbanded Netherlands Antilles, was first inhabited by South American Arawaks who were enslaved by Spanish colonists after their arrival in 1499 under Alonso de Ojeda, one of Columbus' lieutenants.

When the Netherlands gained independence from Spain in 1634 the Dutch East India Company seized control of the island, establishing its capital Willemstad on a natural harbor.

Slaves were then imported to provide labor, initially for the salt mines, but subsequently for agricultural plantations and the island changed hands between the Dutch, the British and the French several times during the 18th and 19th centuries, before stable Dutch rule was re-established in 1815.

The abolition of slavery in 1863 triggered economic decline, relieved in 1915 when Royal Dutch Shell built an oil refinery on the site of the former slave market at Asiento. It has been the hub of Curacao's economy ever since and provided a major source of fuel for Allied forces during WWII.

Curaçao gained self-rule in 1954 as an island territory of the Netherlands Antilles and in 1984, the 30th anniversary of the first elected Island Council saw the inauguration of a national flag and anthem; then 21 years later islanders voted in favor of separate status, which was finally confirmed by the dissolution of the Netherlands Antilles and the creation of Curaçao as a country within the Kingdom of the Netherlands on 10 October 2010.

Did you know?

- Curaçao also includes the uninhabited island of Klein Curaçao.

Capital: Willemstad.

Government: Autonomous within the Kingdom of the Netherlands.

Head of state: King Willem-Alexander since 2013, represented by Governor Lucille George-Wout, since 2013.

Head of government: Prime Minister Bernard Whiteman since 2015.

General information

Electricity:

The voltage on outlets in Curacao is 120/127 volts AC, 50Hz. American-style plugs with two flat pins (with or without round grounding pin) are used. Hotels may also have a 220 volts outlet for shavers. Travelers are advised to bring along a power converter and an adapter.

Water

The tap water in Curacao is of excellent quality and you can drink from any tap. Bottled water is available at all supermarkets, snack bars and kiosk.

Airlines

Curacao is quick and easy to reach by plane. Most mayor airlines fly to Curacao.

Currency

Curacao currency is the Antillean guilder (also called the florin), which abbreviated as ANG.

US dollars circulate freely, so it is possible to get by using only American dollars or credit cards

Exchange rates may vary slightly at stores and hotels. You can find daily exchange rate information at one of our local banks and/or are listed in the daily papers. Visit www.centralbank.cw for the current exchange rates.

Euros are accepted at some hotels and restaurants, but unlike US dollars, they do not circulate freely.

Mayor credit cards are accepted almost everywhere on the island.

Religion

The majority of the population is Roman Catholic, with Protestant minorities, both evangelical and other low-church denominations. There is also a Baha'i temple and a synagogue.

Social conventions

The social influences are predominantly Dutch, combined with Indian and African traditions. Men wear tropical lightweight suits for business appointments and formal wear for evening engagements. Similarly, women should take some evening wear, but dress for daytime is casual. Swimwear should be confined to the beach and poolside.

Language

Dutch is the official language. Papiamentu (a mixture of Dutch, Spanish, Portuguese, English, Arawak Indian and several African languages) is the lingua franca; English and Spanish are also widely spoken. There are 50 different nationalities.

Weather & climate

The temperature is throughout the year 30°C, but tempered by cooling trade winds though humidity is still around 75%. The main rainy season is from October to December. The annual mean temperature is 27.5°C (81.5°F) with rainfall 515mm (20 inches). Curaçao lies outside the Caribbean 'hurricane belt'.

Local travel

When taking a taxi, always check that it is a registered one and negotiate the price before taking the ride. Most taxis do not have meters.

Road travel / parking

If you are renting a car in Curacao, it is important to pay attention to the parking arrangements. Traffic drives on the right-hand side. Main road conditions are relatively good, but roads can become slippery when wet. You will need to pay for parking throughout the city center.

There are parking meters that tell you exactly how much and how to pay throughout the city. Make sure you adhere to them because the city pursues a strict parking policy. A parking fine may be imposed but depending on where you parked your car, this may also be towed away.

And this is a costly and unpleasant experience.

Mobile calling

When in Curacao, you may use the local network with your own mobile telephone. The cost for mobile telephone calls depends on your own service provider. You can also buy a prepaid phone card. These cards are available at various prices at supermarkets, gas stations and phone shops.

International Dialing Codes

The country code of Curacao is +5999.

If you want to call a number abroad from Curacao, dial "00" followed by the country code.

Internet

Curacao has numerous places where you can use a computer with internet access, including internet cafes, libraries and almost any hotel. Nowadays many restaurants, lunch room, coffee shops also offer free WIFI services.

Passports

To enter Curaçao, a passport valid for at least six months after the intended stay is required by all nationals.

Visa

Please contact your embassy or consulate for inquiry about visas.

Please note that visa, transit and entry requirement vary from country to country, and can change with little or no notice. The resources listed on this page are intended as a guide, but please refer to the relevant embassy or consulate for the most up to date information.

It is the responsibility of the traveler to obtain a visa and comply with all requirements and the organizing committee shall accept no liability for any guarantees and/or necessary procedures.

Insurance & Liability

No insurance is concluded for the participants (athletes, coaches, umpires, assistants, members of the delegations, visitors, etc) related outside of the championships. We draw explicit attention to the fact that all participants and members of the individual delegations have to take out their own personal insurance (liability insurance, health insurance, travel insurance etc.). The organizing committee will not assume any corresponding cost and rejects any form of liability.

Shops

Most of the shop opens at 09:00 and close during lunch time (12.00 – 14.30pm), with the exception of supermarkets.

Banks

Opening hours' banks: from Monday through Friday 08:00 – 15:30 pm, some banks are open on Saturday morning as well (09:00 – 13:00 pm).

Downtown Willemstad on the Punda side, the capital of Curacao.
